A QUEER LAPSE OF MEMORY.

Mrs. Flack asserts most positively that she never applied for a divorce from her husband. Such a statement would seem to settle the question. But now comes her son William, who is more than suspected of being a coconspirator with his father, and he cheerfully remarks that his mother did apply for an absolute diverce, "but she has forgotten it." He is reported to have said further that Mrs. FLACK " will remember it again."

It requires a violent stretch of the imagina tion to swallow such a yarn as young Flack spins. That a woman should have a memory so defective that she disremembers whether she asked ber busband for a divorce is incredible. And yet that is about the size of

ST. LOUIS SPEAKS.

Not to be outdone by its rival, Chicago, St. Louis now comes to the front and insists that the World's Fair must be held there, or it will know the reason why. All this is said will know the reason why. All this is said with mock seriousness, but, of course, it is merely a gibe at Chicago. It would never do for the citizens of St. Louis to sit idly by and by silence tacitly acknowledge Chicago's superiority. The rivatry between the two cities is too intense for that.

But there is method in this new St. Louis shovement. It extinguishes whatever hope Chicago may have had of securing the tante but last season, wealth and marvellous World's Fair. A division of sentiment in the West on the subject of the location is sure to

SCORE ONE FOR THE COW.

Through the resolute refusal of a cow to be dumped precipitately from a horse-car track in Jersey city yesterday, the lives of several passengers in a runaway street car were saved. A defective brake allowed a car heavily laden with people to gain a frightful velocity on a down grade, and just as all on board were momentarily expecting an awful calamity the car overtook a cow that was slowly meander. ing along the track. Bang went the car against the milker, and the bovine spunk was aroused. She resisted the attack, balked, and by repeated balking slackened the speed of the vehicle and all were saved.

Good for the cow! This act will mitigate to a marked degree the bad odor in which brought this thing t' pull a cork with, an' those snimals have stood in public estima. tion ever since the terrible fire caused by Mrs. O'LEART's cow in Chicago.

To make a triumphal tour of Jons L. Sulravan's trip to a Mississippi jail is hardly a a la Bill.

Who can read—as everybody ought to readthe daily reports in THE EVENING WORLD of what the Free Doctors' Fund is doing for the poor babies and poerer mothers of this city without feeling that he must give something to help so wonderful a charity? If this story of poverty and suffering were told of any other place in the world, the whole country would be interested and aroused. If it were related of some far-away town in Asia or Africa, a missionary society would at once be organized relieve such abject misery. But it is told of streets, courts and alleys here in New York, almost next door to us; it is as true as gospel: names and numbers are given so that any doubter may see for himself that not a word is exaggerated, not a detail omitted. # TO ROSCOE CONKLING.

The Most Beautiful Monument in Utica's Forest Hill Cemetery

A Sarcophagus of Quincy Granite with Simple Inscriptions.

The Design Selected by the Widow of the Dead Statesman.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. I UTICA, Aug. 5. -The monument erected in memory of the dead statesman, Roscoe Conkling, is completed and is one of the

THE CONKLING MONUMENT. most beautiful of the many in the Forest

Hill Cemetery in this city. It stands in the family burial plot, just a ittle north of the monument to Horatio Seymour.

The monument is of Quincy granite, and is in the form of a sarcophagus, with two heavy bases of cut, unpolished granite, a cubical die with polished columns at each corner, and a massive cap surmon ling the whole. The die is polished. On it is the simple inscription:

ROSCOE CONKLING. standing out in relief on the east side, while Roscoe Conkling, Born Oct. 30, 1829, Died April 16, 1888, is in relief on the west side.

The ends of the die are also polished and the cap is a huge, massive and imposing the cap is a large, massive and imposing stone.

The cornice is cut in a graceful, simple style and a noint is formed at the top by the four faces, which are left in the rough.

The whole will weigh twenty-five tons and was made from a design selected by Mrs. Conkling about a year ago.

In dimensions the base is 8 feet 1 inch in length, 5 feet 1 inch in width, and 1 foot 4 inches high. The second base is 6 feet 11 inches long, 4 feet 11 inches wide and 1 toot 6 inches high. The die is 6 feet 2 inches long, 3 feet 2 inches wide, and 1 foot 10 high. The cap
